A Novelty in the Law; and Interest-ing to Surgeons.

For several days past the case of Wm. Reed against Dr. Hibbard Jewett has been on trial in the Superior Court, and has atacted considerable attention.

The action was one for malpractice. In April, 1861, Wm. Reed was kicked by a corse and his thigh bone fractured. Dr. Jewett attended the case. After setting the limb properly, and leaving it in position for about seven weeks, it was found, on examination, that the bones had not united, nature not performing her work. The limb was again reset, and left in posiremedies to promote union. At the expira-Specific No. 34, which cures diptheria and tion of this time it was examined again, and found to be in no better condition, mature still refusing to perform her office. It was then determined by Dr. Jewett that fragments should be allowed to overlap, to procure what was termed a lateral union, which was effected in about forty days,

Non-union of fractures or delayed union is somewhat rare in surgical practice. Mr. specifies. The headquarters of Humphrey's Reed did not understand this; and insti-
